OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

Washington, D.C. 20240

March 18, 2004

Committee on Appropriations,
Subcommittee on Interior and Related Agencies,
Ms. Deborah Weatherly, Clerk
U.S. House of Representatives
B-308 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515-6023

Dear Ms Weatherly:

In response to your request, we obtained information on the "Joint Ventures: Partners in Stewardship" Conference that was held in Los Angeles, California, from November 17 to November 20, 2003. You indicated that the Subcommittee was particularly interested in the number of Department of the Interior participants and whether the National Park Service paid for non-National Park Service individuals to attend the conference. The purpose of the conference was to offer land management organizations the opportunity to "explore and shape" the possibilities of forming partnerships and creating a nationwide network of public places.

According to information provided by the National Park Service, 414 employees from the Department of the Interior registered for the conference, including 260 from the National Park Service. Another 46 employees from the National Park Service attended the conference as event staff. The National Park Service did not directly pay for any non-National Park Service individuals to attend the conference. However, the Conference Core Team (35 individuals from the participating organizations) paid, from Conference revenues, travel and transportation costs of $51,985 for 195 non-Federal participants who made presentations at the conference. In addition, the Core Team waived registration fees of $51,180 for the 195 non-Federal presenters and for one presenter from the Office of Management and Budget. Additional information about the conference follows.

If you have any questions about the information, please call me at (202) 208- 5745.

Sincerely,

Earl E. Devaney
Inspector General

BACKGROUND

- The National Park Service, the U.S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs convened the “Joint Ventures: Partners in Stewardship,” conference. The purpose of the gathering was to offer land management organizations the opportunity to “explore and shape” the possibilities of forming partnerships and creating a nationwide network of public places.
- According to the conference web site, the “participants will include a broad cross-section from federal, state and local governments, the business community, tribes and indigenous communities, non-governmental organizations and the education and scientific communities.” The website also stated that “conference participants will have opportunities to examine models of shared leadership, influence the emerging nationwide network of public places, interact with agency and partner leaders, learn new skills, and hear nationally recognized speakers.”
- The conference offered 259 different training sessions over the three-day period. The sessions covered a wide range of projects and practices, such as the Yuma East Wetlands Restoration Project, Southeastern Rail-to-Trails Partnership, and Building Effective Corporate Partnerships.
- A Core Team was responsible for making day-to-day decisions on conference planning and financial commitments. The Core Team was comprised of 35 people from the partnering agencies (Appendix 1).
- The financial activities of the conference were divided into two phases. The National Park Service provided accounting and fund services for the planning phase. The National Park Foundation provided accounting and fund services for the conference phase.
- The information presented in this document was obtained from the National Park Service. At the time our report was prepared, the National Park Service was still compiling financial information on conference expenditures.
